Great Lakes luxury vinyl plank (LVP) flooring, sold primarily at Menards, ranges from $2.00 to $3.00 per square foot. It features thick wear layers (20 mil to 22 mil) and rigid SPC cores. Customer reviews are mixed; while many praise the realistic wood visuals and thick wear layer, others report fragile click-lock systems and joint separation over time. Reddit +4

Common Pros & Cons

- Pros:
  - Thick wear layers (20–22 mil) offer high scratch and traffic resistance.
  - Stone Polymer Composite (SPC) rigid core provides good dimensional stability.
  - Attached sound-reducing foam pad improves comfort underfoot.
  - Attractive price point for waterproof flooring. Great Lakes Flooring +2
- Cons:
  - Click-lock edges can be fragile and prone to breaking during installation if misaligned.
  - Some users report planks popping up, gapping, or losing joint integrity under heavy use.
  - Strict subfloor leveling requirements (must be flat within 1/8 inch per 10 feet). Reddit +1
